Philharmonic to Feature Fun Mix of Music at Upcoming Children's Concert

The Philharmonic of Southern New Jersey will perform a fun and eclectic mix of mix at its annual Children's Concert on Sunday, March 21, 2010 at 3 p.m. at Moorestown High School.

The concert, designed specifically for children and their families, will include cherished patriotic tunes, the tale of Peter Rabbit, performances by a local chorus and the charm of puppetry. "We've even thrown kazoos into this delightful mix," said philharmonic conductor and music director Philip Francis Travaline.

The orchestra will be joined again this year by hand-made puppets designed by the acclaimed Tucker's Tales Puppet Theater. "And a few other surprise treats as well," Travaline said.

The concert has become an annual favorite among local children, their parents and grandparents. "The Children's Concert is a joy to prepare and present. We love being able to introduce children to the music, sounds and sights of a symphonic orchestra," Travaline said.

Tickets for the performance are $5 for students and $10 for adults. Moorestown students may attend for free. Tickets can be purchased by calling 856-779-2600 or by visiting the philharmonic's website, located at www.psnj.org.

Moorestown High School is located at 350 Bridgeboro Road, Moorestown.

The philharmonic's Children's concert is one of four that the 75-piece, all-volunteer orchestra is presenting this season. The season also includes a spring concert featuring classical masterpieces and contemporary standards on May 15, 2010. For additional information, visit www.psnj.org.
